Purpose and Principles of Shared Governance

“Shared governance is a system of open communication aimed at aligning priorities, creating a culture of shared responsibility for the welfare of the institution, and creating a system of checks and balances to ensure the institution stays mission-centered” (Bahls 2014).

At Radford University, shared governance addresses issues related to the core academic mission and also the administrative functions and policies related to implementing that mission. Radford University is strongly committed to shared governance that includes all stakeholders because the resulting decisions will be better-informed and more sustainable than ones derived from one individual or from a cadre representing only one constituency. Decisions and recommendations that are best for the welfare of the university as a whole are based upon processes in which individuals listen to all ideas, respect competing concerns, and evaluate alternatives.

Certain fundamental principles are vital in order to foster a healthy system and culture of shared governance. An open and effective system of shared governance will:

- clearly delineate pathways for decision-making,
- clearly identify participants in decision-making,
- clearly describe the scope of the role played by each participant in decision-making,
- allow for open discussion in which participants will feel free to voice their perspectives
- regularly review shared governance

Academic Governance

This document addresses Academic Governance, which is primarily under the purview of faculty and the Provost. This document describes the organization of academic governance, identifies the participants, and outlines the processes to be followed.

This document also is intended to foster something less tangible than structures and procedures but equally important: a culture of transparency and trust in which all stakeholders—administrators, faculty, staff, and students—are encouraged to share the knowledge and insights that will allow the University to address complex issues and adapt to changing needs. In addition to the above, an open and effective system of academic governance will be receptive to change. This university continues to evolve—embracing new populations of learners, incorporating new technology, and responding to new or changing disciplines. Therefore, procedures for amending the Academic Governance system can be found in the Overview of Shared Governance document, allowing this to be a living document for a university that is continually renewing itself.

Procedures for Standing Academic Committees

The term ‘committee’ refers to both ‘committee’ and ‘council’ and encompasses bodies on the department, college, and university level. Membership on an academic governance committee may include representatives from other than the Academic Affairs division.

Membership on committees

Unless otherwise noted and except for individuals representing specific units or offices, appointed committee members are selected in the following fashion:

Student appointments are made by the SGA Senate.

Faculty appointments are made by the Faculty Senate Executive Council.
Administrative and professional faculty appointments are made by the AP Senate.

When individuals are representing specific units or offices, appointments are made by the appropriate vice president.

Persons who serve by virtue of position may appoint a designee.

Terms of service on committees

Unless otherwise indicated, terms of service on university level academic governance committees are two years for all non-student members beginning on the Monday two weeks prior to the fall semester. To ensure continuity, terms of non-student members should be staggered.

The term of appointment for students is one year.

Members, whether student or non-student, may be reappointed or reelected.

If a substitute is appointed or elected to complete the term of any committee member, the substitute's term shall expire at the end of the original term.

Timeline for constituting and convening committees

All appointments to university level academic governance committees are to be submitted to the Designated Administrator and to the Associate Provost for Academic Operations no later than four weeks prior to the start of the fall semester. Upon approval of the Provost, confirmation letters will be sent out two weeks prior to the fall semester.

These committees must convene and elect officers no later than the end of the fourth week of the fall semester. Committees that meet only as business dictates must convene by the deadline to elect officers.

Election of officers

Unless otherwise indicated, the following officers of academic governance committees are elected annually by the members of the committee:

chair
vice chair, and recording secretary

Election of university wide academic governance officers will be reported by the newly elected chair to the Designated Administrator and the Assistant Provost for Academic Operations, who will post that information to the Shared Governance website.

Designated Administrators

For each committee, a designated administrator has been identified. Designated administrators are chosen because the committees' charges fall under their purview. They are responsible for facilitating the business of the committees. They convene or designate a convener for the first meeting of the committee, serve as a resource for the committee, and receive and forward the committee's annual reports. Designated administrators will be thoroughly familiar with the Academic Governance Document as it applies to their designated areas of responsibility.

Guidelines for Designated Administrators

Guidelines for Designated Administrators are described in the Overview of Shared Governance at Radford University.

Reporting Responsibilities

Academic Governance committees, except for the Faculty Appeals, Faculty Grievance, and AP Faculty Grievance, shall provide an update of activities to the Designated Administrator by the Friday of the first week of spring semester. The committees' annual reports are due to their designated administrators by the Friday of the week following spring semester's final exams. Designated Administrators are responsible for forwarding all reports to the Assistant Provost for Academic Operations to be posted on the Shared Governance website.

Parliamentary Authority

Robert's Rules of Order, in the form of its most recent edition, will govern all committee proceedings. Additionally, committees that have or develop internal policies for carrying out their responsibilities will submit those documents and any subsequent revisions to the appropriate Designated Administrators for review and approval. A copy of these documents is to be filed with the Designated Administrator and forwarded to all committee members.

Attendance

All members are expected to attend meetings of their respective committee. In the case of excessive absences, the appointing senate/official will be asked to appoint someone who can and will attend regularly. Committee members may identify substitutes for a particular meeting. Substitutes retain the voting rights of the committee members. Proxy votes, however, are not acceptable, as per Robert's Rules.

Meetings

Except when personnel matters are being considered, all committee meetings are open to the public. Observers may request permission of a committee to make statements. A quorum shall be based on a majority of the voting membership of the committee, excluding any membership positions that are vacant after the end of the fifth week of the fall semester.

Minutes

Each shared governance committee will keep and share the minutes with the members of the committee and the appropriate administrators on the University sanctioned cloud platform. Copies of the minutes and supporting documents will be maintained by the designated administrator or designee for the current and previous academic years at a minimum.

Confidential Discussions and Documents

Procedures for handling of confidential discussions and documents are described in Overview of Shared Governance at Radford University.

Pathways for Proposals

Academic Proposals

This document specifies pathways for making collaborative decisions about proposals for changes in curriculum, programs, or academic policies, procedures, and structures. Since stakeholders are constantly seeking to improve curriculum and operations, the Academic Affairs division has established review and approval routes for proposed changes, including as appropriate the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) and the Southern

Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC).

Proposal Initiation

Proposals may be initiated by any potential stakeholder in the action. However, the pathways identified for review and approval of proposals for courses and department-level programs start first at the relevant department curriculum committee to allow faculty who will be responsible for implementing the changes to have their voice heard first. The pathways for proposals for university-wide academic changes begin with one of the shared governance committees, the Faculty Senate or the AP Senate. Copies of the initial proposal may also be sent simultaneously for information purposes to other constituencies in the approval pathway. For some actions, specific formats may be required, e.g. new course proposals. If not, the proposal should at a minimum include a title for the proposed change, a description of the change and the contact information for the initial author(s) as well as a rationale for the change. If appropriate, include an analysis of the impact of the proposal on affected stakeholders, programs and offices. When changes are proposed to senate handbooks, constitutions, and/or bylaws, specify the sections and language to be altered. If the proposal includes any fiscal impacts, a budget should also be included. The proposal must include a signature block with lines for each reviewing and approving authority required in the pathway and lines for the dates the action is required and when it occurred. (Signature block models can be found on the Shared Governance website.)

Review & Approval

Included in this document are the pathways required for review and approval of various proposals. The academic pathways reflect committee charges within the shared governance structure as identified in the Teaching & Research Faculty Handbook, the AP Faculty Handbook and this document. They also reflect the decision making authority of administrative officers in these two documents.

Categories of action

Each constituent in a pathway (committee, senate, or administrator) in a pathway may take one of the following types of actions with respect to a proposal:

Review and Recommend: constituents shall review the proposal, may call in the proposer or other affected parties, and will recommend approval as submitted, approval subject to recommended changes, or rejection of the proposal. Their recommendation, along with any justification for recommended changes or rejections will be forwarded to all constituents in the pathway. The recommendations may include separate consideration of related actions. If a proposer does not agree with any parts of a recommendation, they may attach comments to be included in the proposal's documentation as it moves forward.

Approve: the constituents have the authority to approve or disapprove the proposal. If the proposal is approved it is forwarded, along with any comments and recommendations received, to the next constituent, if any. If the proposal is not approved, it shall not be forwarded. If the proposal contains amendments (changes in wording, deletions or additions), the proposer may withdraw the proposal within ten class days. All constituencies in the path up to this point shall be notified of the decision and the rationale for the decision. In the case of disapproval, the proposer may seek an appeal following the appeal process described below or may revise and resubmit the proposal in light of any recommendations.

Move through: Each constituent is responsible for ensuring that the proposal moves on to the next level for review and comment or approval.

Informed: Other affected parties that are not constituents in the pathway shall be informed upon final approval/disapproval of a proposal.

Timeline

The initial author(s) of the proposal is responsible for tracking the progress of the proposal and ensuring the proposal proceeds through each step in the pathway, including any suggestions or recommendations already made. Constituents with a role in reviewing and recommending or with approval authority shall have up to 20 class days during the fall and spring semesters to fulfill their function. Faculty Senate, however, has 40 class days during the fall and spring semesters to allow for review by sub-committees and full review by the Senate. Proposals intended to be considered by Faculty Senate must be delivered to Faculty Senate Executive Council no later than March 1. If no action is taken within the specified time period, the proposal shall be forwarded to the next constituent with an indication that no action was taken at the previous level.

Proposals that must be approved by the Board of Visitors and/or state level authorities have their own timelines; author(s) should be cognizant of timelines and deadlines of the authorizing board/council/agency and submit proposals with sufficient lead-time to insure timely action.

Appeal

The author(s) may appeal the decision to disapprove in full or in part. The appeal shall be to the approval authority who disapproved. The appeal shall be in writing with a rationale that responds to the reasons for disapproval. The appeal has to be submitted within ten class days. The authority who disapproved has ten class days following receipt of the appeal to respond. If the appeal does not result in a change in the decision at this level, the proposer has ten class days to appeal to the next level up of approving authority, up to the President. The approving authority has ten class days to respond to the appeal. The decision at this level shall be final.
